

I pay for my XM every month and rely on my XM Traffic and Weather everyday. Removing Traffic and Weather from XM seems to be quite unreasonable. If the taxpayers funded XM Radio like they do with the Public Broadcasting System (PBS), then perhaps the Federal Communication Commission and the National Association of Broadcasters would have an argument. This is not the case. If the AM and FM stations want to stay around, then perhaps they could compete with each other to offer their services to XM. The AM and FM stations can still perform their function to their local audience, but on a third band, XM. Let the subscribers and their wallets determine what goes on our XM!
